ABINGDON WATCHES RELEASES SECOND VIDEO ON USING AVIATION WATCH

July 12, 2010

In an effort to educate and promote the use of the aviation watch, Abingdon Watches CEO, Chelsea Welch, is hosting a series of videos covering the different functions of the aviation watch. The second video in the series has been released today!

“This next video is suitable because we are all traveling this summer. The focus this time is converting currency so you know how much you are spending during your vacation. Everyone needs this tool, and it works much faster than pulling out an app on your phone or a calculator – and it works with any and all currencies.” says Welch.

The second in a series of “How To” videos, called How to Use Your Aviation Watch: Converting Currency, can be seen on YouTube and Vimeo and will show you how you can simply convert any currency using the E6B slide rule found on an Aviation Watch. Welch uses the Amelia model from the Aviatrix collection. The videos will soon be hosted directly on www.AbingdonWatches.com.

CEO Chelsea Welch

Abingdon Watches is a watch company specializing in aviation watches. It began with a young student pilot who decided to make a change for her fellow pilots. The company philosophy is one that aims to benefit those women all over the world who are frequent flyers as well as frequent travelers and to help them realize their dreams. Currently, Abingdon Watches is in the process of designing their third model and will be releasing it this fall.
